Five Reasons To Buy This CJ3

#2 – SkyStep

- 3 equally spaced steps enhance ease of entry.
- Enclosed back & sides help prevent slips and improve passenger security.
- A gas cylinder helps smoothly deploy the step, reducing risk of damage to door sill or toes.
- Precision machined from tough aircraft aluminum for long life.

Five Reasons To Buy This CJ3:

#3 Side Facing Seat

Whether it is needing to quickly load luggage in the rain, or your grandson wants to watch the action, it is obvious to see why this side facing seat is a necessary, and preferred option to have.

Five Reasons To Buy This CJ3:

#4 Engines on TAP Blue

This is the full program, not deferred or progressive. Others may try to trick you, so be careful. This is the program you want – the highest level of coverage offered by Williams International.

#5 – Value

The low total airframe flight hours are 3,671 hours, which is 26% lower than the average of the CJ3 fleet for sale of 4,945 hours. TAP Blue coverage on the engines gives you the peace of mind you seek. The interior was refurbished in 2022 with a stunning fabric update on the side panels this month. It will have your passengers smiling. The paint has been touched up this month as well, giving it a newly repainted appearance. The SkyStep and SkyFlush features are not available on competing CJ3's. The panel has everything you need to fly to your favorite fishing spot in the middle of nowhere or to Teterboro Airport. Lastly, this jet is priced $700,000 below the market. There simply isn't another CJ3 that can compare.

History of N991BT

Bass Pro Shops bought this one new and based it in Springfield, MO for 9 years. It was sold to Watch Hill Capital in Santa Monica, CA for the next 7 years, then flipped through a dealer to Belt Tech Aero in Indiana, who operated it until sold to its current owner, Mark Huffstutler of Huff Air and SkyWay MRO (formerly Sierra Industries). Mark bought it because Mamma sideswiped this CJ3 with her Escalade in 2023 and Mark's SkyWay MRO has the expert skills to get it back into shape. This was a minor repair, requiring only one skin needing replacing, but the insurance company's loss is your happy opportunity.
